Anomalous Health Incidents

How to Get Medical Care from the DOD

What's an Anomalous Health Incident?

An AHI describes a series of unexplained and sudden symptoms associated with the acute onset of a sensory event. AHI symptoms include pressure, heat, loud sounds, or other auditory phenomena.

The National Intrepid Center of Excellence provides medical care coordination and management for DOD and approved Non-DOD AHI patients.

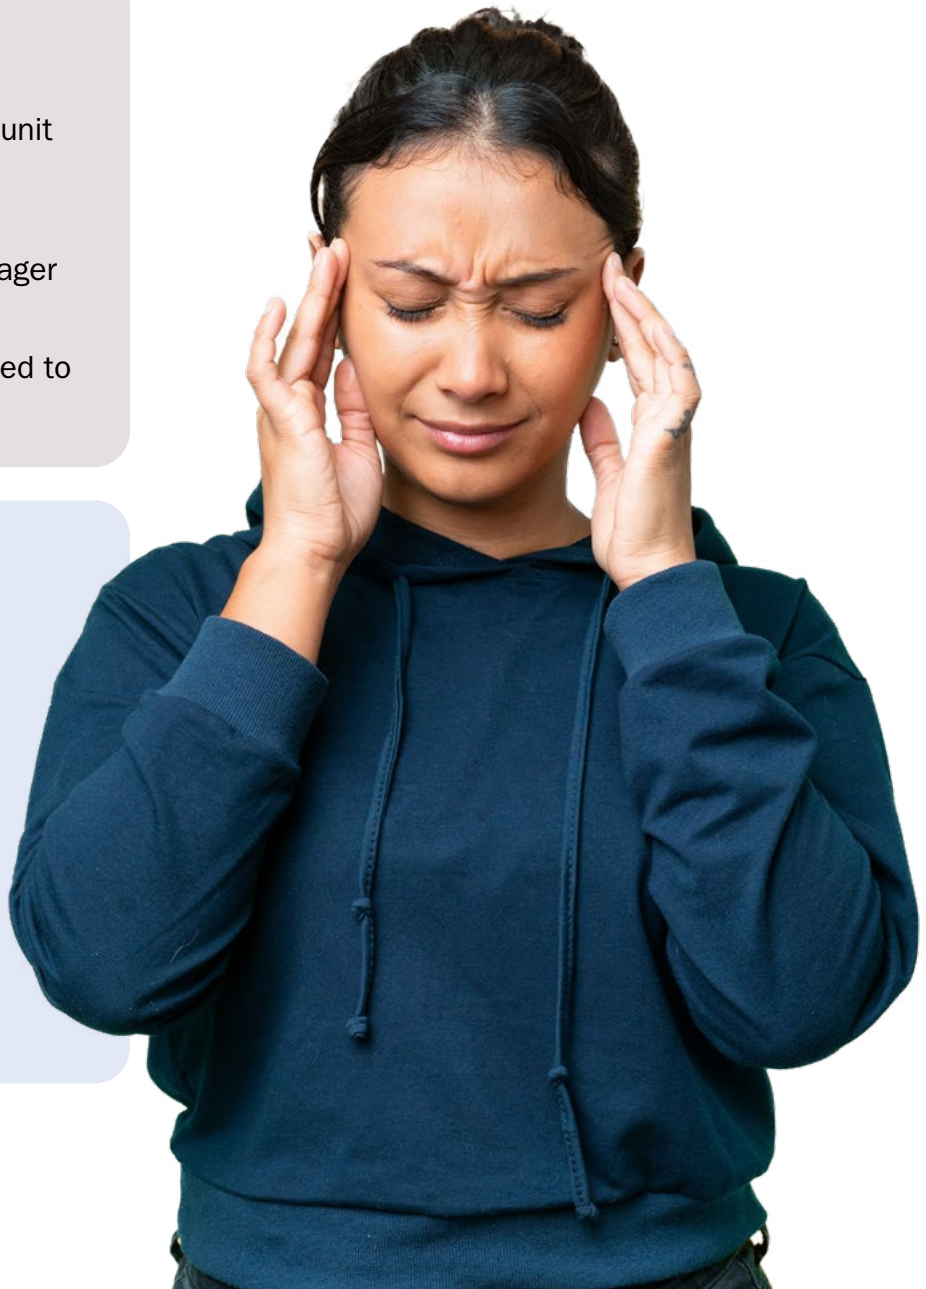

Follow these steps to get a referral. Make sure you do the steps in order.

For TRICARE® Patients

- ☐ Seek urgent medical care.
- ☐ Report the AHI event to your unit and DOD counterintelligence agents.
- ☐ Notify your primary care manager of a possible AHI event.
- ☐ If appropriate, you'll be referred to NICoE for AHI medical care.

For Non-TRICARE Patients

- ☐ Seek urgent medical care.
- ☐ Report the AHI event to your counterintelligence representative.
- ☐ Get a DOD AHI Approval for Care Memo from your agency.
- ☐ Once DOD approves your memo, you'll be referred to NICoE for AHI medical care.
